Fraser Fir - $50

The "Cadillac" of Christmas Trees, this beautiful tree features short and soft needles, and is among the best in needle retention. They are similar to the Balsam Fir, however, Fraser Fir branches angle upward slightly to showcase their silvery-blue underside. Their firm branches are fantastic for holding lights and ornaments. Its slower growth rate and high demand contributes to its higher price.

Balsam Fir - $45

The Balsam Fir is one of the most popular Christmas tree varieties for good reason. An all-around-awesome tree, its short and soft needles gives it a Christmassy clean look. It has a lovely tree fragrance, firm branches for supporting typical decorations, and good needle retention. If you're in the mood for a reliable, classic Christmas tree, the Balsam Fir is a great choice.

Colorado Blue Spruce - $40

Are they really blue? You'll find some Blue Spruce with a very strong, silvery-blue tint, while others are more green. But regardless of their color, they smell really nice, feature very sturdy branches that are great for those heavier ornaments, and have excellent needle retention. These trees are easy to identify by their prickly, 1-inch needles. We've heard from past tree customers that it's great for encouraging cats to stay off :)

Norway Spruce - $40

Although it's very popular in Europe, the Norway Spruce remains kind of a hidden gem around here. These trees are often quite full and beautiful with a symmetrical shape, short, flat needles and nice, stiff branches. They have grown prolifically on our farm, which means you can find a large tree for a small price.

Scotch Pine - $35

This solid pine is quite a popular tree choice in the USA, with its long lasting needles and pleasant aroma. It tends to be more full, and has very stiff branches that can hold up those heavier decorations. Its 1-3 inch long needles are much stiffer than a White Pine, but more gentle than the sharp Blue Spruce. Varying from the uniform appearance of the spruce and fir trees, the Scotch Pine tends to be more like a snowflake, as each one is unique in its own way. In terms of growing, Scotch Pine are true survivors, making it through the most challenging conditions and as a result, being a budget-friendly choice.

White Pine - $35

These big fluffy giants, with their long, Lorax-like needles, are sure to be a friendly presence in your home. They have soft needles that hold up well through the season. Their supple branches make them best suited for lightweight decorations. Because of their quick growing nature, you can get a lot of tree for your buck.
